Madelyn Scheuber is motivated to achieve favorable outcomes for her clients in her emerging practice. She is driven by client focused advocacy and cultivating her legal writing to develop effective defenses. Maddie began working with the firm as a summer associate in 2024.

Maddie graduated from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, earning a bachelor's degree with high distinction in History, and minors in Psychology and Legal Studies. Maddie earned her Juris Doctor cum laude from the University of Illinois Chicago.

During law school, Maddie was an articles editor with the Review of Intellectual Property Law. She worked as a judicial extern for Judge McMahon Zeller in the Domestic Relations Division of Cook County, where she gained courtroom experience and valuable interactions with pro se litigants.

Prior to moving to Chicago, Maddie grew up in the southwest suburbs and often returns to spend time with family and friends. In her free time, Maddie enjoys reading, attending exercise classes, and traveling with friends.
